THE LOVES AND HEROINES OF THE

By RICHARD HENRY STODDARD. By RICHARD HENRY STODDARD.

This is one of the most unique, desirable, and valuable illustrated works published, containing, as it does, poems to illustrate the real and ideal Loves and Heroines of 15 of the most celebrated poets from Dante to the present time, with twelve finely executed portraits, from designs by Eurry and others, of Parnancu's Larna, Tasso's Larna, Surgay and Contained Burgay and Contained Burgay and Contained Burgay and Contained Burgay and Contained Surgay and Man of Athers, Surgay and Surgay and Man of Athers, Surgay and Surgay and Man of Athers, Surgay and Man of Contained Surgay and Man of Athers, Surgay and Man of Contained Surgay and Man of Athers, Surgay and Man of Contained Surgay and Man of Contained Surgay and Man of Contained Surgay.

Mr. Stoddard has admirably executed his task in every respect.

He has searched the vast wilderness of English poets from thom his materials are drawn—or they may divide the honor between them—that there is nothing in the collection to commend itself to the voluntuary, and that, whatever be the date of the pooms.

"who love a coral lip And a rosy cheek admire," and to those who

"Internstured of the mind,
Are careless, eyes, lips, hands, to miss;"
for both likings will find satisfaction here.
From the Philadelphia North American.
It was a happy thought that led the editor to the execution of this work. Of the many collections of numbers English poetry this is the largest, the most complete, and the most indiciously selected of my that we remember. The name of the editor should be sufficient quaranty to his samy admirers that refused taste, delicate discrimination, large knowledge, and that rarest of literary virtues, literary honesty, are everywhere visible in the composition of his volume. taste, delicate discrimination, large knowledge, and that reads

LIFE OF ANDREW JACKSON

ALIFE OF ANDREW JACKSON

OF TRNNSSER.

In his own lifetime, Andrew Jackson was the most pypolar of American citizens. Since his death, there is but one name more cadesred than his to the masses of the people. His fame, to use the language of Henry Clay, the greatest of his opponents, is part of the moral property of the nation.

The life of tieneral Jackson was crowded with events. The whole of his career was peculiar, extraordinary, interesting, be yond that of any American of his time. His virtues and his fail ints, his good actives and his bed actions, all slike bear the stamp of his streng and ideally. At the same time, he was the great Engineery Trin May of the Great West, as the Great West was in his day impulsive first-ble, brave, generous and patriotic prompt with word and deed for his country—a warm friend—a terrible enemy.

The influence of Andrew Jackson upon the fortunes and character of the United States was powerful. Besides adding to the flory of his country's arms, and giving her an immortal issuen into art of self-defense, he changed the character of parties, and altered the course of political events. He touched nothing which he did not radically change. He fought nothing which he ded not defect. He opposed nothing which he sid not aminiate.
No more could resist its invincible will, or sand the shock of his overwhelming popularity.

To this hour his infinence is felt and soon in the character of

No men could resist its invariance with a sum as overwhelming popularity.

To this hour his tofinence is felt and seen in the character of the Government. No one can understand the politics of to-day who does not know much of the nature and exteer of Andrew Jackson, and comprehend what he did and what he destroyed, as the head of the party which has ruled the country, with little interruption, since the day on which he assumed the Presidential chair, thirty years ago.

THE TRIBUNE for 1861. PROSPECTUSThe XXth Volume of THE WEEKLY TRIBUNE commenced with the issue of Sept. 1. During the past year THE TRIBUNE has been obliged to devote quite a large proportion of its space to Politica, but we shall soon be able to forego Political discussion almost entirely, for months, if not for years, and devote nearly all our columns to subjects of less intense, but more abiding interest. Among these, we mean to pay especial attention to more abiding interest. Among these, we mean to pay especial attention to 1.—EDI CATION.—The whole subject of Education, both Popular and General, will be discussed in our columns throughout the year 1861, and we hope to enliat in that discussion some of the prefoundest thinkers and the ablest instructors in our country. It is at once our hope and our resolve that the cause of Education shall receive an impetus from the exertions of THE TRIBUNE in its behalf during the year 1861.

II.—AGRICULTIRE.—We have been compelled to restrict our elucidations of this great interest throughout 1850, and shall endeaver to atone therefor in 1861. Whatever discovery, doduction, demonstration, is calculated to render the reward of labor devoted to cultivation more sample or more certain, shall receive prompts and full attention.

devoted to coldivation more sample or more certain, shall receive prompt and full attention.

III.—MANUFACTURES, &c.—We hall every invention or enterprise whereby American Capital and Labor are attracted to and advantageously employed in any department of Manufacturing or Mechanical Industry as a real contribution to the Public Weal, insuring amplet, steedier, more convenient, more remunerating markets to the Farmer, with fuller employment and better wages to the Laborer. The Progress of Mining, Iron-making, Steel-making, Cloth-weaving, &c., &c., in our country, and the world, shall be watched and reported by us with an earnest and active sympatry.

IV.—FOREIGN AFFAIRS.—We employ the best correspondents in London, Paris, Turin, Beslin, and other European capitals, to transmit us early and accurate advices of the great changes there sliently but certainly preparing. In spite of the pressure of Domestic Politics, our news from the Old World's now varied and ample; but we shall have to render it more perfect during the eventral year just before us.

"HOME NEWS We amploy regular paid correspond-
